QUESTION:

Why should some people pay for those who NEVER PAY?

ANSWER:

Our Answer is they should not. The Hard Cash paid by you to the Merchant who does a Credit Business, surely pays or helps to pay for goods that other people are wearing.

The Merchant who pays CASH down for his purchases and sells strictly for CASH, undoubtedly is in a position to undersell all CREDIT-buying or CREDITselling Establishments.

GETTING RELIGION.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO CORRESPONDENT AT A REVIVAL.

What She Thought of What She Saw-Religious Excitement.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 28, 1882. As it was a week-day night I had no idea that a houseful would be called out and a number of other late comers. The pulpit was filled with a choir of ladies and he was half way gentlemen by far the most respectable part of the audience, in appearance at least. I In the vestibule, under pretense of putting made the text to be: "And the door was on her shawl. I also caught sight of my shut." Mr. Whittle, the evangelist, was industriously turned the leaves of their Bibles. I noticed that during the address THE WORD HELL Was used but once, though it was often insinuated. By and by the people sung. It was words and tune that all knew, and as we sat way off to one side we could see whole pews in profile, mouths opening and shutting in perfect time, and numerous cheeks sinking in and puffing out in time to each other. Looking at it in that way to each other. Looking at it in that way his seat and come forward that night, I felt like saying to him: "Mr. "This is not a dressy audience, is it?" and received for an answer, "I have always understood that your Jesus came for the speaking in a pleasing voice, and as he re-ferred to the gospel the ministers near him tough crowd." In one of the pews in our line I observed a smooth-faced, complexionless young man whose hair with great care had been drawn about his forehead almost to his eyebrows and held there with the palm of his hand while the ends were carefully brushed back. The result was the whitish plat of hair upon his forehead which made him beautiful. His com-panion was a sweet little bird of a girl about 17, and the two had religion very bad. They held hands under the hymnbook and sang together; they breathed together, listened together, smiled together, and by and by he tucked his arm under hers and

THEY ROSE FOR PRAYERS TOGETHER. Just then Mr. Whittle called out, "You young man in the gallery, you had better be praying for yourself instead of looking about to see who else rises for prayers," and I plunged my face into my handker. and pure life that had once been hers. A chief, afraid of being caught myself. A longing swept through her heart just to chief, afraid of being caught myself. A man near me rose and called out determinedly, "Pray for me!" which elicited a pious "God bless you, my friend!" from the revivalist. An individual, very much is read of soan and water came into view mother was there and forgiveness and love mother was the nomination. the revivalist. An individual, very intension in need of soap and water, came into view for an instant, and was gone. A woman stood holding a little girl by the hand. "Here's another," said Mr. Whittle fervently, "and another, and another," and then while everybody was invited to pray his own little prayer by himself, the song revivalists sang, "I have never known you." A silent attention fell upon the bowed audience more impressive by far than any speaker had called forth. It is always so. I have noticed it with many assemblages. Music touches the many assemblages. Music touches the hidden spring of emotion, especially if it be the song of the human voice, more surely than any other appeal can do. I have been interested to observe the different revivalists as they succeeded one another is it you?" "Yes, mother; and, oh! I will, therefore, conquer my reserve; I will tell him my fears; I will show him my heart." And I do so; I hold a conversa tion with him-a conversation all filled with tears and stammerings on my part, with tears and stammerings on my part, with dignified and kindly comfort on his. The next night how am I horrified to find my case held up to view. "She met me on the stairway," says the restrict of the stairway, says where the stairway of the stairway of the stairway of the stairway of the stairway." Says where the stairway of the the preacher, and I see the audience sitting in breathless interest, "a woman well dressed, just as well dressed as you, my sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister, who are dead to your sins, and with sister. see how I can be forgiven, but I want to be thus to prominence, the feelings I had haps many times, yet as I am not really the woman who intercepted the preacher on the stairway, I simply sit by and say to myself as I listen, "How marvelous that any one can be moved to experience religion by the recital of a lot of little stories."

But I looked at the young man with the beautiful plat of tallow-colored hair on his forehead, and his interest was painful and intense, so much so that as near as I could judge his grip on the little hand he held by the revivalists who have lately come to strengthened every moment, and I looked by the revivalists who have lately come to us from the East via Sacramento. But when we came to the doors we were warned making fun of them? I assure you, no; I Court to the fact that one of the affidavits in when we came to the doors we were warned Making fun of them? I assure you, no; I away from two because those aisles were full, and we were finally ushered under time, and I would have piled up their hapthe gallery and fixed seats let down for us piness if I could, and made them tighter still in bonds. once a week, and asks in a soft womanish voice : "Would you like some home-made doughnuts to-day ?" Rev. Mr. McKenzie, with his quaint accent and Scotch manner in private, is great for asking conundrums and telling stories, and the last time I had seen him he asked Crusoe?" So when I saw him get up from McKenzie, how about Brown's rooster that crew so?" Well, he began and told some more stories, but he told them so well, they were so to the point and so free from all objectionable personality that I owned there might be something in stories after all. Bear in mind the evening's text -" And the door was shut"-and you may perhaps realize the effect of the following, told with a little of the Scotch burr clinging to the speaker's tongue and the 'plain" speech making the pathos strong er: One of the young girls in a little vil-lage was led away into sin, perhaps by the example of some of her companions, and leaving her home, went away to London. But one day while proceeding street she came by a church and heard the

DOMESTIC NEWS.

WASHINGTON, January 30th. - In the Criminal Court this morning District Attorney Corkhill applied to the Court to fix a day for hearing arguments upon the motion for a new trial in the case of the United States Court to the fact that one of the amdavits in support of his motion had annexed to it a copy of the Evening Critic. The allegation was that during the progress of the trial the paper had been read by or to the jury. It bore on the margin what purported to be the signatures of four of the jurors. The jurors deny that they saw any newspapers, or put their reases were never derived the their names upon any newspaper during the time they were impaneled. This raised an issue of fact, which was very important to be determined, and was not matter that the Court could determine on ex parte affidavits. The jury admitted that during the time they were impaneled they gave their autograph to various persons, and he thought it might be important that he should have an opportunity to cross-examine the men in that connec-tion, to determine whether the signatures upon the newspaper were genuine. The full names of two of the invors were on the paper. The District Attorney said one of them was spelled wrong.

Scoville said all these things show the propriety of something more than ex parte affidavits in this matter. I ask that the jurers be produced in Court, or the Court appoint a mission to take their deposition that I be allowed to produce such further testimony as I think proper as to the genu-ineness of the handwriting. As to the arguments for a new trial, he thought he could be ready by the latter part of the week, as all the questions he cared about taking up were as to this newspaper and in respect to newly-covered evidence. The Court therefore fixed Friday for the The District Attorney said he did not intend that the jury should be put on trial. This new-paper was suspicious on its face. The gentleman who had filed the affidavit and who had purloised the paper had already been bound over for forgery in this District. He (the District Attorney) would show the Court that this was a clever attempt at forgery. He would not agree that the jury, who had done their duty so faithfully, should be put upon trial, and the oath of such a man as that placed against theirs.

The Court stated that he could only ask the parties making the affidavits, and would do so.
Scoville said that when forgery was alleged

According to the circular of White & Lissak, the available supply of wheat bags in this market in 1881 was 46,097,500. This includes a stock of 7,392,500 carried over from 1880 and 5,250,000 made by the Oakland factory in November and December, 1880, thus reducing the importations for 1881 to 33,-455,000. The stock of Oakland, Calcutta and Dundee wheat bags in all the warehouses of the city on the 1st of January, 1882, was 16. 984,000. This shows that the consumption of wheat bags here in 1881 was 29,313,000, exclusive of the second use of bags emptied at the local mills. As the ordinary wheat bag The Climax people at Park City captured holds from 125 to 130 pounds, the quantity the Walker and Webster works on Saturday taken for consumption last year must have sacked 35,000,000 centals of wheat.

The arrival last week of a fresh supply of FRENCH WOVEN COR-SETS prompts us to add a word in general about them. They differ from "DOMESTIC" CORSETS in that they are made in one piece; the whalebone being woven in as the making progresses-thereby insuring a better and smoother finish and greater strength for wear. In shape, the better kinds embody the greatest perfection yet attained in Corset manufacture. French Woven Corsets may be common everywhere, but common nowhere at our prices. THE WEATHER.

James A. Barwick, Sergeant Signal Corps, U. S. A., furnishes the following regarding the weather: The night of the 29 h and 30th I put my extra minimum thermometer upon the tin roof of the signal building, to see the tin roof of the signal building, to see the tin roof of the signal building, to see the tin roof to be covered with tin)—was what the difference was between the temperature of the air during the night and the temperature of the fin roof. The lowest reached by my minimum thermometer in the instrument shelter was 32°; the lowest point the one on the roof reached was 18°, or 14° below the freezing point. The thermometer was covered so thick with frost that at 8 o'clock A. M. I had to scratch it off with my finger nail to be able to record the reading. The following is the temperature observed during the day by a thermometer on the roof in the sun and the thermometer in the instrument shelter in the shade: 8 A. M., in the shade.

Migher (the roof to be covered with tin)—was granted.

Trustee Ryan, to whom was referred at the last meeting the petition of F. D'Hondt, reported that he had examined Front street, from Q to R, and found nothing that ought to be done in the way of improvement.

by Professor Loomis as follows: "The highest temperature of the day should occur when the amount of heat lost each instant by radiation is justequal to the heat received from the sun. Before midday the earth receives from the sun more heat than it loses by radiation, and its temperature rises.

During the night we receive no direct heat from the sun, and the earth cools by radiation. The lowest temperature should occur. The lowest temperature should occur when the heat received each instant from the returning sun is just equal to the loss by

This occurs about an hour before the hour; showing, as Professor Loomis says, the earth increases, and as the air resting on the earth is heated both by the direct rays of mometer in the shade would rise for some time after a thermometer in the sun had begun to fall. It would be a very interesting experiment to place a thermometer on the grass and have others above that, at different lengths, to show the difference in the temperature during the night. The experiment would be very much more interesting if it was taken during a long spell of northerly winds, and then during the prevalence of the southerly winds; and still more interesting data could be obtained by having two thermometers near each state of the southerly winds; and still more interesting data could be obtained by having two thermometers near each still more interesting data could be obtained by having two thermometers near each still more interesting data could be obtained by having two thermometers near each still more interesting data could be obtained by having two thermometers near each still more interesting data could be obtained by having two thermometers in the sun had begun to $6: J. METROPOLITAN THEATER. - Emerson's California Minstrels last evening opened for a week's engagement at the Metropolitan Theater, under the sole management of William Emerson. The house was packed from "pit to dome," to use the well-worn expression, which in this instance was strictly true. The welcome his company received was as cordial as Emerson could possibly desire. The troupe is an evenly-balanced one, gives a good performance, and does not allow passed Ogden for Sacramento on the 28th: Continental Oil Company, 1 car coal oil; cal ability has been surpassed here by former with good taste, and effectively, although one Atchison, Whittier, Breuner, to be in trim by this evening. The first of the cases under the Sunday The first of the cases under the Sunday law prosecutions was tried at San Leandro on Saturday, and resulted in a speedy verdict of not guilty by the jury. The case was that of the people against Chambeaux, the proprietor of the Estudillo House. When the jury returned into Court with their verdict, the scene that followed is unparalleled in judicial records. The crowd kicked over the benches, and danced and shouted as though bedlam had broken loose. It was fully five minutes before order could be restored, and as soon as the business of the Court could be disposed of all hands adjourned and celebrated the event. United States Senate. WASHINGTON, January 30th .- The bill for a public building at Peoria was reported favorably.

Edmunds, from the Judiciary Committee reported favorably the bill re-establishing the Alabama Claims Commission and for distributing general awards.

deration of the funding bill was then Pugh's proposed amendments were accepted by Vest as modifications of his propoamount of the bonds it seeks to withdraw, and thereupon to withdraw its bonds and reduce its circulation, and requires it to have $50,000, instead of one-third of its capital, on deposit with the Treasurer, irrespective of the amount of its capital. The section of the revised statutes revives the old law requiring one-third of the capital of a hank to be held. one-third of the capital of a bank to be held by the Treasury in United States bonds, pronibiting the deposit of greenbacks in lieu of bonds, and further requiring the bank seek-ing to reduce its circulation to deposit its own notes, the latter feature being the one in sisted upon in the discussion as preventing a combination of banks from contracting cur rency arbitrarily, and without notice.

Before action was reached, Hawley got the floor, the Senate went into executive session, and soon after adjourned.

House of Eepresentatives. WASHINGTON, January 30th .- The following bills were introduced:

Representative Page recently received from an attorney for settlers in the Moquelumne grant a draft of a bill for their relief, which, in view of the great importance of the inter-ests involved, he submitted to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, with a re nest for a critical examination, to ascertain cient care, and whether its enactment would result beneficially to the settlers. Upon receipt of Commissioner McFarland's reply, he has to-day introduced it in the House of Rep. resentatives. It provides that all actual settlers upon lands lying within the limits of the rejected Moquelumnes grant, as defined by the official survey of said ranch made in 1879 by direction of the Secretary of the Interior, shall be authorized to enter the lands were at the la ands respectively claimed by them under the homestead and pre-emption laws, and to re-ceive patents therefor from the United States, and to have the time required to perfect their titles computed from the dates of their original settlement. The Supreme Court, in the case of Newhall vs. Sanger, held that the lands in ques-tien did not pass under the railroad grant, but it did not in terms annul the patents; hence the necessity of suits to vacate them.

The Mormon Contest in Congress. New York, January 30th .- Elder Cannon, of Utah, who is in town, was interviewed by a reporter to-day. He believes that in the contest in which he is now engaged for his seat with Campbell, he will be successful, as precedent and right are on his side, and that if defeated, it will be by the powerful that if defeated, it will be by the powerful influence brought to bear against him by his opponent and the Government party. "There is nothing new to be considered," Cannon said, "save perhaps the latest aspect of the polygamy question, and if Campbell, who only received 1,357 votes to 18,168 cast for me, is admitted, it will be in the face of all precedents.
